Churchmen Lash Hard At Commies

Reds Can Bring No Happiness; But Democracy Has Some Faults

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—A report sharply denouncing communism as the road to "totalitarian dictatorship" and making some light criticism of democracies awaited action by Christian leaders here today.

The report was discussed by delegates to the Assembly of the World Council of Churches yesterday in afternoon and evening sessions. Delegates to an assembly represent 163 denominations in 48 countries.

The 51-page document concerns the main theme of the convention, "Christ—the Hope of the World."

Some who joined the debate stated it failed to lay enough stress on the second coming of Christ.

Others contended it failed to place sufficient emphasis on the possibility of achieving justice, with Christ's aid, in this world.

And some figured it failed to go far enough in condemnation of communism as a "false hope."

Archbishop Michael of New York, head of the Greek Orthodox Church in North and South America and one of the six new presidents of the council, declared:

"FALSE DOCTRINES which are mentioned in the report, especially that of communism, threaten the whole of human existence. All of these dehumanize life."

"It is this aspect of false hopes with which the Church is primarily concerned. The danger for man which these false doctrines present appears to be sorely underestimated in the report."

The "main theme" report was placed before the assembly by a coordinating committee. Submitted with it was a statement from the coordinating group in the nature of a report on its work and its findings.

Delegate after delegate went to the rostrum to comment on the report or the statement, many to suggest a change in phrasing.

The night session ended without a vote. No time was set for renewal of debate and a decision.

The assembly, now in the 12th day of its 17-day meeting, also will act on reports on other subjects and on an overall message before the session ends Aug. 31.

A 10-page section of the "main theme" report is devoted to forms of contemporary governments and movements.

Under communism, it states, "happiness, justice and love are no longer possible; and man in the class struggle is no longer truly man."

"THE COMMUNIST doctrine of the dictatorship of the proletariat has led in most cases to totalitarian dictatorship in which the freedom of man is in fact denied."

The report says democracy is founded upon Christian tradition and in its basic beliefs is a "child or stepchild of Christian belief and Christian compassion." It adds: "To Christian teaching it owes, in large part, its recognition of the worth of every person, of the fundamental equality of all men as human beings, of their interdependence and of their mutual obligation to one another."

"But inequality, discrimination, injustice, reliance on naked power, exploitation and aggression are not absent from democracies."

Political Blue Chips Down In 17 States

Republicans, Democrats Both Setting Sights On Marginal Campaigns

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republicans and Democrats are putting their political blue chips down in 17 states in an all-out battle for control of the next Senate.

These same states, along with nine others where there are marginal districts, also may be major battlegrounds in contests for command of the new House.

As the situation now stands, with active campaigning just starting, the two parties appear almost evenly matched in their chances to alter the present hairline margins in Senate and House.

The Senate lineup is now 48 Republicans, 47 Democrats and 1 independent; the House count, 218 Republicans, 213 Democrats, 1 independent and 3 vacancies. Thirty-seven Senate and all 435 House seats are at stake this fall.

As party leaders analyze the matter, nine Senate seats now held by Republicans and eight held by Democrats are in varying degrees of danger.

REPUBLICAN incumbents who apparently face stiff challenges include Senators Cooper of Kentucky, Cordon of Oregon, Dworshak of Idaho, Ferguson of Michigan, Mundt of South Dakota, Saltonstall of Massachusetts and Kuchel of California. Republican-held seats in New Jersey and Wyoming also fall within this category.

Democrats likely to be hard pushed by their opponents include Senators Anderson of New Mexico, Douglas of Illinois, Frear of Delaware, Gillette of Iowa, Humphrey of Minnesota, Murray of Montana and Burke of Ohio. The seat being vacated by Sen. Johnson of Colorado also is among these.

House seats in most of these states will be hotly contested. In addition, there are marginal districts in Virginia, West Virginia, Florida, North Carolina, Maryland, Missouri, Pennsylvania, New York and Nevada.

That does not mean that states like Connecticut, Indiana, Kansas, Washington and Wisconsin will be overlooked. But the parties' major national efforts are likely to be turned elsewhere except perhaps for a few individual congressional districts.

In Senate races, Democrats are claiming a 14-6 edge over Republicans in what they regard as almost certain victories. Republicans contend they are certain to elect

NLRB Rules Labeled As Anti-Labor

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Murray (D-Mont) today assailed as "anti-labor" several recent decisions handed down by the National Labor Relations Board and predicted one of them would take Labor "back to the days of the yellow dog contract."

"Yellow dog" contracts, now barred by law, required employees to renounce union membership. Murray, senior Democrat on the Senate Labor Committee, led a losing fight last winter against confirmation of Albert C. Beeson, the third Eisenhower nominee on the five-member board.

Sen. Ives (R-N.Y.), also a Labor Committee member, disagreed sharply with Murray's analysis of recent NLRB decisions. He said: "The NLRB under the New Deal has tended to reflect the position of organized labor in many respects. The present board, with three of its five members named by President Eisenhower, seems to be trying to strike a balance between the powerful pressures of Labor and management."

The disagreement between the two senators underlined difficulties Eisenhower may run into if, as he says he will, he asks Congress anew for Taft-Hartley labor law revisions next year.

The Senate pigeonholed Eisenhower's plan for changing the law last spring. Some administration critics have charged since then that the GOP-appointed board majority has, through its decisions, made things tougher on Labor.

Finley, arrested yesterday on the university campus, was booked on charges of burglary and grand larceny. Van Dyke, picked up at his home about midnight, was being brought by patrolmen to Columbus where, Moon said, he will be booked on similar charges. Arresting officers recovered stolen electronics equipment at Van Dyke's home.

Former Lima Industrialist Dies

HYANNIS, Mass.—Lewis A. Larsen, 79, former president and founder of the Superior CXOA Corp. at Lima, Ohio, died here yesterday after a two-week illness.

He kept a summer home in nearby Harwichport. A native of Ridgeway, Iowa, Larsen is survived by the widow and two sons, Dr. William Larsen of San Francisco and Lawrence of Lima.

Brazil Clamping Down On Reds

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Police cracked down on the outlawed Communist party today after 48 hours of riots and demonstrations touched off by the suicide of President Getulio Vargas.

Amid increasing evidence the Reds played a strong hand in sparking the riots, aimed in part against the United States, more than 100 Communists were under arrest. One was accused specifically of burning a police car.

Copies of Imprensa Popular, the Communist newspaper which publishes openly despite the ban on the party, were seized by police in Rio de Janeiro. The newspaper headlined its account of yesterday's demonstrations: "Down with Americans." Rio residents shout indignantly in streets.

A dispatch from Porto Alegre said police raided an allegedly Communist paper there and arrested the editor.

This capital city's commercial life gradually returned to normalcy today. Public offices, banks and shops reopened.

A FEW TROOPS still were to be seen on the streets, but the heavily reinforced patrols of the last two days were called in.

Joao Cafe Filho, the new president, cast about for someone to fill the ticklish job of finance minister in the inflation-plagued government he inherited. He conferred with individual ministers and scheduled a cabinet meeting.

Students Accused In OSU Robbery

COLUMBUS (AP)—The state highway patrol today charged an Ohio State University student and planned to charge another in connection with a $9,000 burglary at the university's radio station WOSU.

Capt. F. C. Moon identified the youths as Robert Finley, 19, of Columbus, and Robert Van Dyke, 19, of Canton. He said both admitted taking electronics equipment from the station.

Finley, arrested yesterday on the university campus, was booked on charges of burglary and grand larceny. Van Dyke, picked up at his home about midnight, was being brought by patrolmen to Columbus where, Moon said, he will be booked on similar charges. Arresting officers recovered stolen electronics equipment at Van Dyke's home.

Circleville Schools Will Open Sept. 3

Pupils To Be Dismissed At Noon; First Full Day Of School Sept. 3

Circleville city schools will open Sept. 3 at 9 a. m., according to an announcement by George Hartman, city superintendent of schools.

School for that day only will be dismissed at noon. School buses in Circleville Township will cover their usual routes at their regular times.

At the high school, Principal J. Wray Henry will signal all grades 9 to 12 pupils to go to the auditorium at 9 a. m. with the ringing of three bells. Students will then get their homeroom assignments.

The remainder of the morning will be divided into seven periods to allow pupils to meet in each of their scheduled classes. High school pupils will also be dismissed at noon.

PRINCIPALS and teachers will still have activities for the rest of the day. At 1 p. m., all principals will meet in the superintendent's office at the high school.

After this meeting is over at 1:30 p. m., each principal will then meet with their teachers in their respective buildings.

Pupils will return for their first full day of school on Sept. 7. The cafeteria will open on that day with student lunches at 25c and teachers' meals at 30c.

Pupils entering the kindergarten must be five years old before Nov. 1, according to regulations. A birth certificate must be presented to verify the child's age.

"Due to the tremendous increase in children of school age," Hartman declared, "it was necessary to open three additional elementary classrooms."

"THE VISUAL education room in the basement at Franklin School was converted into an additional elementary room. This makes it possible to leave the kindergarten at the school for one more year."

"An additional grade at Walnut School forced us to rent a kindergarten room for students from the south end of the city at the Mount of Praise Bible School on Ohio St."

"This room was the nearest to the area to be rented. I hope people in the south end can form car pools and take advantage of this kindergarten."

Hartman explained that there is definite proof in Circleville that kindergarten-trained children have greatly increased their chance of success in the first grade over those who do not attend.

The kindergarten in the north end of the city will be held at the Circleville Gospel Center, he added.

First grade pupils must be six years of age by Nov. 1 and must also present a birth certificate. The first grade clinic will be held in the Franklin School on the afternoon of Sept. 22, he concluded.

James E. Gates, Of Cambridge, Newest Addition To Patrol Here

Newest addition to the State Highway Patrol stationed in Circleville is James E. Gates.

Gates will join Patrolmen Bob Greene and Gene Miller here. He replaces Patrolman Ray Hoyman who was transferred to London.

The new patrolman is a rookie, having graduated from the latest Patrol training class on Aug. 6. The class was No. 42 for the patrol.

Gates is 21, unmarried and a native of Cambridge. He stands 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighs 180 pounds.

AFTER GRADUATING from high school in Cambridge, Gates went to work for the patrol as a clerk-stenographer in that city. A short time later, in March of 1951, he joined the U. S. Marine Corps.

In the three years he was with the Marines, Gates served in Hawaii and Japan. He rose to the rank of staff sergeant.

After his discharge in March of 1954, Gates applied for the training school and was admitted in May. During his wait, he again worked as a clerk for the Patrol.

The latest training period, in which Gates took part, lasted 14 weeks. However, his "real training" is just beginning, according to Patrolman Greene.

The first week after training school Gates was assigned to Patrol Headquarters in Columbus to "more or less get acquainted."

NOW ON REGULAR duty here in Pickaway County, Gates will work with either Greene or Miller for at least 60 days, according to Greene. When it is felt Gates has sufficiently been "broken in," he will be allowed to patrol alone, Greene added.

Gates, whose father died a number of years ago, said he and his mother will probably move to Circleville. The rest of the Gates family consists of two sisters, one a nurse in Dayton, and a brother who is in the Navy.

Nations Due To Eye Depth Of Cooperation

How Far Will Countries Go In Pledging Action To Combat Communism?

WASHINGTON (AP)—Foreign secretaries of eight nations meeting in Manila Sept. 6 to form a Southeast Asian defense organization will have three key problems to work out. They are:

1. How far will the countries go in binding themselves to a common defense of the area.

2. What sort of pledge will they make to combat Communist subversion.

3. What sort of continuing machinery will be set up to keep the countries advised and prepared to meet emergencies.

The United States and the other countries pioneering the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines, Thailand and Pakistan, have made no advance commitments, but have exchanged views on all these points.

OPINIONS presently range widely, with the Philippines and Thailand understood to be urging strong military commitments and Britain counseling more emphasis on an economic rather than a military approach.

The Philippines was said to be seeking a North Atlantic Treaty Organization type agreement in which an attack on one of the countries would be regarded as an attack upon all of them.

Secretary of State Dulles was understood to prefer a more limited approach: an attack on one country would be recognized as a threat to all pact members.

This is the principle underlying the Anzus pact, linking the United States, Australia and New Zealand, and also the defense treaty between the United States and the Philippines.

The Anzus formula, milder than NATO, declares that an armed attack on any of the signatories would be considered dangerous to the peace and safety of all and that each nation would act to meet the common danger in accordance with its constitutional processes.

Britain reportedly wants an even milder commitment than that. But the Philippines was said to feel that a treaty organization that failed to go beyond Anzus would not serve the desired purpose of bolstering anti-Communist defenses in Southeast Asia.

AN ANTISUBVERSION pledge to deal with one characteristic type of Communist aggression is without precedent in treaty-making procedure. There was believed to be general recognition among the nations concerned of the need for meeting this form of attack.

The third question, that of a continuing SEATO machinery, also drew widely ranging concepts. Proposals vary from creation of an NATO-like military headquarters with a joint staff to a plan for a secretariat representing the eight countries.

British Ban Free Red Vodka

LONDON (AP)—The British government has thwarted a Russian plan to hand out free vodka to thirsty Britons.

A Russian trade delegation brought the vodka here to help put a kick into next month's British Food Fair. Recently keen to win friends and influence the British, the Soviets have rented the biggest stand at the show.

The British Board of Trade, however, has granted only a temporary import license for the vodka. That means it can enter Britain but can't enter Britons.

Monsanto Accused Of Hiring 'Scabs'

DAYTON (AP)—A union spokesman yesterday charged that Monsanto Chemical Co. had hired men from Marion to man positions vacated by 100 employees who struck the plant's Miamisburg Mound Laboratory last Aug. 12.

Henry A. Adkinson, international representative of Local 420, United Gas-Coke-Chemical Workers, CIO, said "scabs" were working at maintenance and operators jobs.

Officials Claim Park-For-Penny Idea Has Become Old-Fashioned

Lowly pennies—those things you use to make the change come out right—have been given another cold-shoulder sub. And this time it comes from the city of Circleville.

City Safety Director Oscar Root supported Nolan Dunkle Thursday in the parking meter man's belief that "pennies are old-fashioned" among the coins for parking privileges. The comments came up in a discussion on a controversy stirred by City Councilman Ray Cook.

Cook, in recent council meetings, said he is pretty sure the lawmakers did not give Root the authority to change the mid-city parking meters to their new make-em-over scale. As now fixed, the meters in the heart of the downtown area will permit parking only for an hour or 30 minutes at a time, depending upon the location of the meter.

And they also refuse to accept pennies, since their mechanism was changed under Root's supervision some time ago. Root pushed the make-em-over parking system as an experiment, and it was later praised by downtown merchants. Under this system, one motorist cannot hold the same parking space for hours at a time.

EVENTUALLY, Cook passed an ordinance which apparently was intended to make the experimental idea a standard style for the mid-city meters. But whether the lawmakers slipped up in failing to give Root the needed authority remains to be argued.

Cook has warned he may launch a test case in court to show that Root changed the meters without authority. And it is known since that time that he has taken steps to delve deeper into the legal technicalities involved.

But nobody at city hall wants to speculate on what the results would be if Cook presses the matter and wins.

Root, early Thursday, said he is through making any additional changes in the meters "until council irons this thing out." And he added he is not at all worried over any court action Cook may initiate.

The safety department head insists he was given all the authority needed to change the mid-city meters. Meanwhile, the "old style" meters on the fringe of the downtown area still take both pennies and nickels.

Dunkle, the city's maintenance and collection man for the parking meters, recently attended a school in Canton to learn the finer points of his job.

HE AND Root, along with several other city officials, warn that the mid-city meters cannot be changed back to their old mechanism—which would allow them to take pennies—without a great expense to the city.

Root said he does not have an estimate, however, on just how expensive it would be.

Baby Hammered By Her Mother

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP)—A 3½-year-old girl was reported near death here today. Police said her mother admitted beating her with a claw hammer.

Deputies quoted the mother as saying she hammered the child on the head and body last night because she wanted to "offer the baby to God" rather than let her husband have the child.

The deputies said the mother, Mrs. Maxine Gilbertson, 23, was separated from her husband Grover. Their daughter Angela suffered skull fractures and severe lacerations on her face and body.

Officials Claim Penny Parking Old-Fashioned

inquiry in behalf of those motorists who want to use a penny to park for only 12 minutes, a proposal mentioned from time to time as an aid for "quickie shopping". In replying to this, Dunkle points out:

"Under the present setup, you can almost always find some time left on the five-cent meters now operating in the heart of the city. Anyone who just wants to park for a few minutes can easily do so by looking around and finding a meter that still has some time left on a vacated space."

"Then, instead of using a penny, the motorist gets his parking free — by using up the time left by the driver before him."

But Dunkle made it clear that is not the main argument against any return to the pennies for mid-city parking.

HE RECALLED discussions on the point during the Canton school sessions, and told how those attending the classes were urged "not to go back to the pennies."

It is not only because the penny's value has taken such a beating over the years that it is hardly worth the handling, he pointed out. An even more important reason is because most of the defaced, bent or battered coins in circulation are pennies.

And to jam the parking meters with them will only add new costs to the city's repair bills.

Meanwhile, all those close to the current parking meter discussions appeared to feel there is no need to consider a return to diagonal parking. Queried as to whether this might be a good idea after the bypass is built, most of those contacted seemed to feel "there will be plenty of parking space downtown after the bypass goes through."

Chairman George Critch of council's finance committee has reported the parking meters cost the city about $500 a week. And, it has been pointed out, diagonal parking rules would nearly double the number of parking spots.

But nobody wanted to predict that this would also double the weekly revenue—at least not yet.

Dunkle said the city has a total of 87 parking meters on Court St.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The No. 1 puzzle as a special Senate committee prepares for its hearings next week on the proposed censure of Sen. McCarthy:

Who are the witnesses going to be — if any — for or against McCarthy, besides the Wisconsin Republican himself?

McCarthy will be a witness. He must be to defend himself against charges that his conduct should be censured by the full Senate.

But Sen. Watkins, Utah Republican and chairman of the committee, hasn't indicated he knows of a single other witness to call.

McCarthy's attorney, Edward Bennett Williams, was asked last night if he would call any witnesses. He declined to say now what he intends to do.

Three senators — Flanders (R-Vt.), Morse (Ind-Ore) and Fulbright (D-Ark) — made 46 charges against McCarthy, some of them overlapping.

These charges, they said, provided grounds for censure. But their charges were not based on personal encounters with McCarthy. They were using Senate and other records involving McCarthy's conduct and offered them as explanation of why he should be censured.

Watkins has said he doesn't intend calling any of the three—even though McCarthy asks that they be called—unless they have first-hand knowledge of their charges.

And yesterday, with start of the hearings only a week away, Watkins asked Flanders, Morse and Fulbright for help in suggesting witnesses or material pertinent to the hearings.

It seems unlikely McCarthy or his lawyer would be content to answer charges, based on Senate records, without demanding the right to confront and examine the people, including senators, who were part of the events which became records.

McCarthy is on different ground here than he was in hearings last spring on his dispute with the Army.

There he was tackling the Eisenhower administration, or a part of it, but his quarrel was only with a few individuals.

But in this situation—where his Senate foes wanted him rebuked for his conduct as a senator—his conduct at this hearing conducted by other senators—may have a bearing on whether he is censured by the full Senate.

In the catch-as-catch-can Army-McCarthy hearings the main witnesses were predictable. The charges by the principals on both sides then involved personal dealings.

Those principals were called to testify, as it was known they would be: Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens, Army Counselor John G. Adams, McCarthy, his investigations subcommittee counsel Roy Cohn, and his staff director Frank Carr.

Since Army Pvt. G. David Schine was at the center of that whirlwind, it could be guessed beforehand he'd have to testify, as he did briefly. A few other people were called as witnesses also to fill in a few details.

Watkins has announced his hearings would be much more disciplined than the Army-McCarthy sessions. They will be more like a courtroom examination, he said.

Watkins' committee was created to look into the Flanders-Morse-Fulbright charges and report its findings to the full Senate. The Senate is now in recess but can return and then decide whether or not to vote censure.

Watkins has taken 13 of the 46 charges and reduced them to five categories. It will be this concentration of charges which his committee will start off investigating.

Watkins has expressed hope his six-man committee's work would be finished before the November congressional elections. Even if it is, the full Senate may not act before the elections.

If McCarthy has to stay glued to the hearings very long, he won't have much time left to campaign for the re-election of a Republican Congress. He's not up for re-election himself.

The hearings, as they develop and favor or discredit McCarthy, may have an influence on some voters in choosing between Democrats and Republicans.

McCarthy himself late in 1953 sought to make himself an issue in this year's elections by saying:

If voters thought his conduct as an investigator of communism "unfair," they could remove him as chairman of his committee by voting Democrats into control of Congress.

Wholesale Food Index Declines

NEW YORK (AP) — The Dun & Bradstreet index of wholesale food prices declined this week to the lowest level since early January.

The index registered .89 compared with .85 on Jan. 5, Dun & Bradstreet said. A week ago the figure was .87 and in the same week a year ago it was .73.

Nehru Condemns SEATO Program

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru has offered his own "collective peace" formula for easing world tension, citing his recent non-aggression agreement with Chinese Communist Premier Chou En-lai.

In a 25-minute foreign policy review to the Indian Parliament, Nehru condemned such military pacts as the U. S.-proposed Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Nehru confirmed India's refusal to participate in the SEATO talks in the Philippines next month and said his government was apprehensive that the proposed organization "will in the present do more harm than any good it might hope to do in the future."

Hot McCarthy Controversy Still Unfinished Business

Editor's Note: Following is the fourth in a series of articles reviewing the work of the recently adjourned Congress.

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Blaring headlines on investigations directed by and at Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) chronicled a spectacular segment of the record of the 83rd Congress. The big sensation was the stormy, 36-day feud between McCarthy and top Army officials. With the verdict still not in on that one, the Senate has some unfinished business left on another growing party from it—an inquiry starting next Tuesday into charges behind demands that the Senate censure the Wisconsin senator's conduct.

Other inquiries plodded on in less showy fashion or blazed across the congressional horizon like momentary meteors. Committees dug into housing scandals, racketeering, crime on the waterfronts. Three of them went unrelentingly after Communists in and out of government. The House Un-American Activities Committee tried to subpoena former President Truman and got a rap on the knuckles from President Eisenhower.

Scores of witnesses took cover behind the Fifth Amendment on questions about communism. Some were fired or suspended from jobs with the government, in defense plants or in schools and colleges. Some were cited for contempt of Congress, a step toward trials in court.

With so many witnesses ducking for cover under the constitutional guarantee that they need not testify against themselves, Congress passed a law to take away this immunity under some conditions. In its place, the witnesses would get immunity from prosecution in federal courts for any testimony they would be compelled to give. There was hardly a day in the last 19 months when Congress wasn't investigating something. If it wasn't vermifuge pills for the Indochinese or ice box deaths it was the high price of coffee or alleged Army codding of athletes.

At times the clanging of investigations almost drowned out the legislative theme song—to the extent that administration leaders from the President down worried about the progress of their program. Behind the inquiries is a story of conflict and controversy, and of jockeying at times for political advantage in a congressional election year.

Yet the McCarthy-Army row was largely a family affair among the Republicans. And the upcoming investigation of McCarthy's conduct was sparked by a Republican, Sen. Flanders of Vermont.

Furthermore, Republicans as well as Democrats have produced one major offshoot of the investigations—demands that Congress police its committees in some way and set up a code of fair practices designed to meet criticisms that inquiries have spawned abuses and mistreatment of witnesses.

Eisenhower, too, has stressed time after time his desire for fair play in investigations although he has said this is a matter for Congress itself to handle.

And time after time the President sidestepped head-on clashes with McCarthy only by refusing to indulge in personalities or name-calling. Even so, he shot some unmistakable shafts in the senator's direction.

Some investigating committees had internal troubles.

Democrats stomped out from McCarthy's Senate Investigations subcommittee when the GOP majority voted the chairman exclusive rights to hire and fire staff members. It took months, and a change in that decision, to get them back.

Under pressure for a staff shake-up, McCarthy reluctantly accepted the resignation of Roy M. Cohn as chief counsel and transferred Donald A. Surine to his own office staff.

On a subcommittee which has hammered away at security risks, it developed that Surine and another staff aide, Thomas Lavenia, had been denied security clearance by the Pentagon. Lavenia was kept on the payroll with an understanding he would have no access to secret information.

Staff troubles, the Army hearings and the censure move are just a fragment of the McCarthy saga in the 83rd Congress which has just wound up its second session. From time to time, the senator banged away at these targets:

Books he said were pro-Communist in U.S. libraries overseas, alleged espionage at the Army radar laboratory at Ft. Monmouth, N. J., Allied trade with Chinese Reds, the government's super-secret Central Intelligence Agency, State Department files and personnel, the Government Printing Office, the United Nations, the Mutual Security Administration, the handling of some tax cases, defense stockpiling, suspected Reds in defense plants, fraudulent Social Security claims, possible waste and corruption in Alaska.

Other Senate and House committees dug into such things as:

Alleged labor racketeering and misuse of union welfare funds, Soviet seizure and abuse of the Balkan states, travel and expense allowances of federal judges, the "Voice of America," a compound to soup up batteries, a reported shortage of ammunition for American forces in Korea, charges of election irregularities, the Social Security system, operations of the Justice Department, the Office of Alien Property, the synthetic rubber program, U.S. housing in Germany, Reds in defense plants, the plunge of a passenger train into Washington's union station, juvenile delinquency, tax exempt foundations.

And that isn't all.

To the accompaniment of widespread protests from churchmen, the Un-American Activities Committee edged into the field of communism in the clergy. One of its members, Rep. Jackson (R-Calif.), told the house that Methodist Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam "served God on Sunday and the Communist front the rest of the week."

Oxnam demanded and got a hearing—10 hours on the witness stand in which he acknowledged he had belonged to some organizations later cited as subversive but branded much about him in the committee files as untrue. In the end the committee adopted a motion declaring it "has no record of any Communist Party membership or affiliation by Bishop Oxnam."

After backtracking down the trail of former government officials accused of having served Soviet spy rings, the Senate Internal Security subcommittee produced a report saying unexposed espionage networks still might be operating in the government.

On the basis of secret testimony, it said in another report that Communist conspirators were flooding the country with propaganda and had hidden printing equipment to carry on in event of war.

The subcommittee, under Chairman Jenner (R-Ind), and the Velde Committee both took up the search for Communists in schools and colleges—a search that brought a number of faculty firings and suspensions.

A senate subcommittee concluded "there was needless loss of American lives" because of ammunition shortages in Korea. It blamed policy makers of the Truman administration for miscalculating the "aggressive designs of International Communism."

A special House committee recommended that the free world make a concerted break in trade and diplomatic relations with Red governments.

A House subcommittee reported it had found "shocking inefficiency" in past administrations in the Justice Department and criticized handling of tax, liquor and anti-trust cases. A Democratic member said parts of the report were "false."

A Senate committee that investigated juvenile delinquency said it had learned of serious drug addiction among young people and that traffic in "insidious filth"—books, pictures, cartoons, recordings—had become big business netting perhaps a hundred to 300 million dollars a year.

A senate subcommittee reported that waterfronts on all coasts are "lawless frontiers." New York docks the "foulest" of all, with mobsters and racketeers entrenched there and Communists and fellow travelers making a "bid for power."

Jenner's subcommittee, in another report, said a Communist fifth column, including some Americans, was operating in the United Nations secretariat.

One of the most rough-and-tumble hearings of them all was the investigation into operations of tax exempt foundations by a special House committee. Members fought with witnesses and among themselves. Democrats walked angrily out at one point. Public hearings were called off after only one side was heard—the foundation critics. A high spot: Rep. Wayne L. Hays (D-Ohio) read some statements on labor policy which committee official Thomas M. McNiece said closely paralleled Communist literature and ideals. Then Hays sprung the trap. The statements, he announced, were by Popes Leo XIII and Pius XI.

DAYS TOO SHORT

TO THE NATION'S precocious business leaders there aren't enough hours in the day. Members of the Young Presidents Organization, composed of top-drawer executives under 50, said in a survey that they spend so much time wrestling with their day-to-day problems they have little left over for creative thinking, reading and simple relaxation with their families.

Most of the group's 700 members said they're rooted to their desks 50 hours a week, and one out of every three said he put in 58 hours or more.

Not only do the young presidents, who on the average earned $39,000 each last year, spend more time on the job than most persons, but they also take home their problems at night. Like all executives with large responsibilities, they always have loose ends hanging around and rarely do they enjoy a feeling of serene satisfaction. The survey does not reveal how many are suffering from ulcers.

But if these fireballs find there aren't enough hours in the day, they, if anyone, are the men to do something about it. One way would be to proclaim a work week of three or four days. This would give them that much more head start over their subordinates. But this might not please the stockholders.

Perhaps a more practical suggestion would be to put some research scientists to work on day stretchers. That, at least, would be a project worthy of precocious presidents.

ADVERTISING'S ROLE

THE PART ADVERTISING plays in the American economy, and how efficiently it performs its function, is revealed in figures released by a large advertising agency that automobile manufacturers spend an average of less than $15 a car for all forms of advertising. A large slice of this goes into newspaper advertising, which automobile manufacturers always have credited with producing the best results.

It is apparent from these figures that advertising, by creating volume sales, not only aids the economy as a whole but results in a great dollar saving to the public. With lower output, automobile prices certainly would be considerably higher or quality of the product lower.

news behind the news

Congressional candidates figure that they have a valuable asset for the November campaign because of the neglect which the Eisenhower Administration and the Republican-controlled 83rd Congress showed toward millions of war veterans. Not in years have they fared so badly on Capitol Hill.

Every measure on their behalf was opposed by the Budget Bureau and the Veterans' Administration which, of course, voiced the White House viewpoint. In accord with these presidential directives, House Majority Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana and the Rules Committee tried to battle up and block all pro-veterans' legislation.

COURAGE—They would have succeeded, had it not been for the courage and determination of Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers of Massachusetts, chairman of the House Committee on Veterans' Affairs. Defying the leadership, she obtained enactment under privileged procedure rarely used, of a bill increasing pensions by five per cent.

When she finally got her proposal to the floor, it passed by a vote of 399 to 0, showing how the Congress felt. It was promptly accepted by the Senate. But this was the only major measure on behalf of the veterans to be adopted.

IRRITATION—Although an orthodox Republican, Mrs. Rogers has difficulty in concealing her irritation toward the Administration's attitude on veterans. In fact, she may have contributed to the adoption of an extremely critical resolution by the Veterans of Foreign Wars at their recent national convention.

The American Legion, which holds its national convention here next week, is expected to denounce the Eisenhower Administration's indifference to the veterans.

When the VFW invited Mrs. Rogers to address their gathering, she replied that she could not accept because she had to remain at Washington to fight for their interests. Partially as a result of her suggestive declination, the VFW endorsed a bitter, anti-Administration "proclamation of policy."

DISREGARD—The Veterans of Foreign Wars at their 35th National Annual Encampment "noted with grave concern the growing and cynical disregard by the Administration and the Congress of the United States for the welfare of those who have borne the battle, and for their widows and orphans, while dealing generously with foreign nations, including former enemies."

The proclamation detailed the fact that American taxpayers have paid out $86 billion in foreign aid during the last 14 years, as against an expenditure of $32 billion for veterans and their dependents since the birth of our Republic over 175 years ago. The statement concluded with this denunciatory paragraph:

"We deplore in public session this willful neglect and call upon the American people to join with us in requesting a return by the national government to the sympathetic and realistic treatment of veterans and their dependents."

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

If the United Nations did not enjoy extraterritoriality on American soil, the New York State FEPC might be applied to an employment policy that advertises its discriminations against Americans. The following advertisement appeared in a New York newspaper:

"Teletype Oper. The United Nations has an opening for a Teletype Oper. who is NOT a U. S. national. Applicants must be holders of valid passports of member states of the United Nations. Must be fully experienced in operating an automatic tape mach. Minim speed 65-70 wpm. Must not be over 50 yrs. of age. Shift work. Perm. post. Sal $3060 gross per annum plus allowances & liberal vac., sick & pension privileges. Apply in person to: Bureau of Personnel, United Nations, New York City."

The word, not, in relation to "a U. S. national" is capitalized. What is wrong with an American teletypist? This is not a policy-making position that requires a balance among the various member states. It is a way-down position, paying $3060 a year, which is none too much for a teletypist in New York, although the fringe benefits may make it a very good job.

It may be that Americans are objected to as employees of the U. N. because of some complicated income tax situation. Or, maybe the U. N. does not want all sorts of troubles with "Fifth Amendment Communists," of whom they must already have had their fill since the McCarran Committee and a Federal grand jury brought them to boot.

If could, of course, spend some time discovering why the U. N. officials are so positive that they do not want an American teletypist on their staff, but, I am sure, I should not be much wiser after the attempt. What I find interesting in this connection is the nature of extraterritoriality and the rights under it.

The United Nations and many of its foreign employees and, to a degree, certain Americans employed there, are not bound by the laws of the United States. There is a treaty and an agreement with the State Department which set forth the rights of all sides. For the Americans, this is limited to their presence on United Nations property; for aliens, it applies wherever they may be. It is the extraterritorial provisions which make it possible for certain countries to use this privilege as a cover for espionage operations, although no country is supposed to use the U. N. for such activities. However, the McCarran Committee two years ago exposed an American group in the U. N. engaged in Soviet espionage.

Extraterritoriality is an ancient and well-preserved procedure in the relations of nations. It was originally designed to protect the messenger, the negotiator, the bearer of good or bad tidings from being murdered or taken hostage.

The United States enjoys these privileges in other countries as it grants them in this country. It can be a very great privilege. I lived under extraterritoriality in China for about 13 years and know the advantages of being outside the law when others are required to live within the law. It is, in effect, the right of a king.

DIET AND HEALTH

Consult the Doctor If Junior Doesn't Eat

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THE child who "won't eat" and who hasn't gained weight for months" is frequently seen by the physician.

Many times nothing is wrong. Between the ages of two and three, the rate of weight gain usually drops almost to zero, then suddenly begins to pick up again.

May Be Mental

The child's difficulty may be purely mental. There may be a battle for power between the child and mother, and the eating problem may be due to too much parental forcing.

However, any child with a severe eating problem should have the benefit of a physician's services. If he is found to be well, the mother should be reassured, in order to prevent oversolicitude and needless restriction of his activities.

Disease May Be Cause

At times, in such cases a disease may be at fault. Children who are pale and underweight are most susceptible to infection. Vitamin deficiencies, bowel disturbances and undiagnosed chronic diseases may be at fault. Perpetual allergies, severe respiratory infections, or worm infestations of the bowel may lead to loss of appetite. Tuberculosis or infected adenoids and tonsils may cause the difficulty in some children. Infected teeth and decayed teeth with abscesses also bring a loss of appetite.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Mr. T.: Does television produce eye strain, and is a wide screen better than a small screen?

Answer: No, television in itself does not cause eye strain if it is looked at for a reasonable time. Of course, the abuse of anything can be detrimental.

In general, a large screen is considered better than a small one because vision is clearer, and it can be watched from a greater distance.

CONDEMN IKE—In preparation for next week's convention here, American Legion headquarters has received numerous resolutions from local posts for possible action or adoption by the national organization. At least 90 per cent of these advance documents agree with the sentiment expressed by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Since the two groups of "heroes" are engaged in a fierce membership struggle, it is almost certain that the Legion will condemn the President, who ratcheted the White House largely because of the fact that he led the Legionnaires and their sons to the greatest war triumph in history.

If there is such a thing as a "veterans' vote," it appears that it will go to the Democrats in November. In numerous congressional districts and in several senatorial contests, it could be decisive. It could enable the Democrats to win both House and Senate.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE
THE BEST chance to get information no one else had was the man who had assaulted Russell. I knew he was on the boat. He had to be. Assuming that he was Stewart's helper, he might be a man who was known to the police. And if he was the hijacker, the same would hold true, for both are specialized skills and the cops keep files on such people. If that reasoning was sound, then the man I wanted would have a violent aversion to having his picture taken.

I leaned back for the first time that day, my face spread in a happy grin. Ellen. She'd help me. I was sure of that. And she would need pictures of the happy passengers to complete the story she was doing for Vacation. It all tied in and maybe, just maybe, she'd find my man for me.

A sour thought hit me then. Two hundred passengers. Ellen couldn't take everybody's picture. But it wasn't necessary, was it? Whoever had waited in my room was someone whose interest in me began when Captain Jellioce announced my name and business. Okay. So that someone had been keeping an eye on me since he had discovered I was chasing Stewart. I hadn't done a thing he didn't know about. He'd been watching. All the time. So I must have met him, talked to him. And I hadn't met or talked to a soul—excluding the boat's officers—except for the people who shared the captain's table with me. All of the de luxe bedroom travellers, big-money tourists, were at the captain's table. And among them was the one who slugged Russell.

Did that hold water? I went back over it. The man—the someone—I wanted could be any of the passengers. That was possible. But it didn't make much sense. It just wasn't likely. My man was someone close enough to keep an eye on me. He had to be someone I knew, at least by sight, and probably to talk to I was sure of that. I didn't even debate it with myself any more.

Now I needed Ellen and I was itching with impatience. I wandered up and down the big bedroom, trying to plan just how to handle it. I had something to do now and I wanted to get started. All the busy sleepiness that had plagued me for days seemed suddenly to have disappeared. I stopped pacing around the room and went out.

I found Russell alone in the purser's office sweating over a stack of invoices, waybills and shipping documents. He was glad to "knock off" for a while. We walked up to the small bridge in front of the pilot house. Only the duty officer was up there, sitting soundly asleep in a big wicker lounge chair. We went outside where I could watch for Ellen and then I told Russell what I'd been planning.

He listened thoughtfully and occasionally touched, with a gentle finger, the high mass of bandage on the side of his head.

"It's fine," he said when I finished. "As long as you say it fast, it's fine. But narrowing it down to one tabular like that. Will that stand up?"

"I think so," I said. "If it was someone else, he'd have been dogging my footsteps and by now I'd know him, at least by sight. But the only people I know are the ones at the Captain's table. If the man we want is not one of them, he's staying away from me. He's been letting me do what I like, talk to people, snoop around, and he hasn't even stayed close enough to watch me. That makes him an idiot. And we know anything, we know this is a very smart apple we're after."

"Okay," Russell breathed. "I can't fight that." He leaned on one elbow against an odd-looking contraption strapped to the railing of the bridge. It folded together under his weight and he straightened it again. "Your girl's tripod," he said. "Grenier tells me she was up here all morning, taking pictures of the river and waiting to get a good shot of Natchez bluff. Old Grenier was really impressed with the way she works. Professional stuff always looks fine, I guess. Just watching her, I'd say she was good, wouldn't you?"

"Yes," I said softly, and it came out softer than I intended because I was looking at her now, getting out of a taxi with Doc Riggs still mentally staggering under the weight of her gear. "I'd say she was terrific."

Ellen stood in a strong beam of sunlight, fishing for money to pay the driver. The subdued blues and greens of her plaid suit were strangely glowing, brilliant, gem-like colors in the strong light. Russell put both index fingers to his mouth and blew a blast that nearly took my head off. Ellen looked up and waved excitedly. She pulled Doc Riggs around, quickly opened a large satchel and brought out a Speed Graphic and then came walking briskly up the gangplank, opening out the camera as she moved. She took station at the base of the jackstaff, signed one, made another adjustment and then pulled out the black shield that protects the plate. She snapped the picture, rechecked the plate, reversed the holder, and took another. Then she gave the camera back to Doc and looked up with a wide smile. I motioned for her to come up and she nodded.

"Think she'll go along?" Russell asked.

"I think so," I said tightly. "Why do you ask?"

Russell shrugged. "Forget it," he muttered. "She's a fine girl. Hate to see her . . . oh, forget it."

He pivoted and walked quickly down the short hallway to his sleeping cabin, went in and shut the door. I had no time to think.

about him. Ellen was there the next moment and I was pleased that Russell had left us alone. She was tired and happy and she bubbled with what she had seen, the houses, the lawns, the furniture, using a creative imagination to build the town in her mind, as it once had been. She was full of it and she was very close and just then anything she admired was exactly what I wanted.

After a few minutes Russell made a big clatter opening his door. He came out onto the bridge with us and then I explained to Ellen about the pictures I wanted her to take. I didn't rush her and I didn't try any tricks. It would have been easy to tell her the problem and then play it so that the idea of a taking pictures would have been hers. But I laid it on the line.

"All right," she said with only slight hesitation. "I need some happy passenger shots, I suppose. The bar, I think, don't you? Everyone comes in there sooner or later. Let's see, you want the captain, Mr. Boltnick, Mr. Buttram, Dr. Dunbar, Joe Riggs, Mr. Russell and you. Who else?"

I looked at her and I hated to say it. Her eyes had never left me and she knew.

"Of course," the women. Wives and unattached females. Dear God, I don't even know the names of those twitting schoolgirls."

She talked fast, almost stumbling in her eagerness to pass the awkward moment. I touched her hand gently and she didn't bother with any more of it.

"I'm sorry," I said. "It's a miserable job."

Russell stirred nervously beside me. He coughed and said with a delicate distaste, "I truly don't think it will be necessary to take my picture. And I am proud, happy and honored to vouch for Mr. Carney Wilde. That cuts down the chore considerably."

Ellen smiled at the foolishness. She touched my mouth with a cool finger. "It doesn't matter," she murmured. "She took a deep breath and smoothed her hair in that graceful, familiar gesture. "Well, let's get started. Which of you carries the equipment? I'll have to stop in my room for some flash-bulbs."

"Russell," I said quickly, "somebody might get a smart idea if he saw me. Remember, don't sneak any pictures. Let all those people see what you're doing and don't let any of them duck out with only a mild excuse. Make them get snarled before you give up."

"Oh, I . . . Ellen said faintly. "That's my job, Ellen," Russell said briskly. "Stop trying to hog the show. I'll set them up and you trip the trigger."

"I'll wait in your office," I told Russell. "Take your time. But remember I'm chewing my fingernails."

Russell saluted briskly and took Ellen's arm. They went down toward Ellen's room.

Monroe 4-H Clubs Present Program For Star Grange

Safety Is Theme Of Presentation

The 4-H clubs of Monroe Township presented a safety program at a regular meeting of Star Grange held in Monroe Township school.

The advisors of the clubs served as program chairman of the program, which was announced by Miss Carolyn Mowery. A display on safety was arranged by Miss Vonna Bach and Miss Suzanne Haller.

The program opened with a demonstration, "How High Are You on the Ladder of Safety?" by Miss Haller. A safety play entitled "A Day in the Home" was given by Patsy Wills, Vonna Bach, Arlene Finch, Fonda Liston and Suzanne Haller.

Winners in a safety poster contest were announced as follows: Arlene Finch, first; Suzanne Haller, second; Patsy Wills, third, and Evelyn Shell, fourth.

Donald Young representative of a feed company, showed a film, "Beef Cattle Production" emphasizing the importance of feeding and management in making beef cattle raising a profitable business. It also stressed the need of proper feeding for nutrition and body maintenance during the reproduction and lactation period.

A girl's sextette including Sue Foster, Patsy Wills, Arlene Finch, Fonda Liston, Carolyn Mowery and Barbara Stoeer was accompanied by Don Ray Wills. Their presentation, "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles", was highlighted by actual bubbles floating around them. The sextette will present their act at a district 4-H contest to be held in Chillicothe.

Francis Furness served as acting worthy master during a short business session preceding the program.

Refreshments were served at the close of the program by Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Neff, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Dick and Mr. and Mrs. Mostyn Garrett.

Barbecued Pork Is Easy Cooking For Outdoor Meal

If you are the prepare-before-hand type of outdoor cook, we think you will be enthusiastic about our latest discovery — Barbecued Porkies.

In the quiet and convenience of your own kitchen, you simmer a thrifty boneless pork shoulder butt until tender, and make up a quick and spicy tomato barbecue sauce. Then you pack your picnic basket with ham, sauce, sliced cooked potatoes and fat for frying, rolls, skillet, coffee and coffee pot long-handled fork and spoon, toaster rack, and the necessary eating utensils.

You also take along something for outdoor nibbling: celery and radishes with cheese, for instance. For dessert you supply watermelon or some other refreshing fruit.

When the coals are glowing, hot and sauce are put together in one skillet and heated, potatoes fried golden-brown in the other skillet, rolls toasted, coffee made. It's a neat and orderly cookout — but mighty good eating! Chances are that if you like these Barbecued Porkies as much as we do, you will prepare them for indoor suppers, too.

BARBEQUED PORKIES

Ingredients: 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1/2 cup finely diced onion, 1/4 cup firmly packed light brown sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup chili sauce, 1 cup tomato juice, 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce, 6 tablespoons cider or other salad vinegar, 2 to 2 1/2 pounds boneless smoked pork shoulder butt (cooked), 10 sandwich buns.

Method: Melt butter in large skillet; add onion and cook over low heat until it begins to get tender. Add sugar, salt, chili sauce, tomato juice, Worcestershire and vinegar; simmer, stirring occasionally until sauce has thickened somewhat—about 1/2 hour. Store in covered jar in refrigerator. At serving time, quickly heat ham (cut in about 1/4-inch thick slices) in sauce. Serve ham and sauce over split toasted sandwich buns. Makes 10 servings.

Note: To cook the pork butt, cover it with boiling water in a kettle; add a slightly crushed garlic clove, 6 whole cloves, 6 peppercorns, a bay leaf; cover and simmer until tender—1 1/2 to 2 hours.

Use 1 1/2 to 3 tablespoons of quick-cooking tapioca for thickening the fruit filling for an eight-to-nine-inch pie. If you are using the tapioca to thicken a soup, you will need 1 1/2 to 3 tablespoons for a quart of liquid.

Kidney Slow-Down May Bring Restless Nights

When kidney function slows down, many folks complain of nagging backache, headache, dizziness and loss of pep and energy. Don't suffer restless nights with these discomforts if reduced kidney function is getting you down—due to such common causes as stress and strain, over-exercising or exposure to cold. Minor bladder irritations due to cold or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages.

Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used successfully for millions for over 50 years. It's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief from these discomforts—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Surprise Towel Shower Honors Mrs. Colwell

A surprise party was given by friends and neighbors of Mrs. H. B. Colwell in her home at 443 N. Court St.

The marriage of Mrs. Colwell and William E. Treat of Waterbury, Conn., will take place in September.

Each of the guests had embroidered her name on a kitchen towel, which was presented to the honoree.

The refreshment table, covered in green, was centered with an arrangement of zinnias and greenery in a white container. Completing the decoration was a cake topped with pink roses and a bride and groom, surrounded by a wedding bell.

Favors of pink and white miniature swans filled with mints were presented each guest.

Attending from out of town were Mrs. Colwell's daughter and granddaughter, Mrs. Bert Shimp and Nancy Lee of Huntington, W. Va.

Party Honors Couple United In Indiana Rites

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Ward of Walnut Street served as hosts to a reception Wednesday evening honoring their son, Roy, and his bride, the former Doris Byerly of West Jefferson.

Mr. Ward and Miss Byerly, daughter of Raymond Byerly of West Jefferson, were united in marriage Monday in Liberty, Ind.

Friends and relatives of the couple were guests at the reception, which featured a refreshment table centered with a traditional wedding cake.

How Does Farmer Make Out If Turnpike Slashes Land?

Editor's Note: Following is the first of two articles telling how the farmer and other landowners fare when a turnpike is scheduled to cut through properties.

By BILL TERRY

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—How does the farmer make out when a turnpike runs through his land—property which may have been in the same family for generations?

That's a question puzzling hundreds of farmers living along the tentatively recommended route of the 410-mile proposed Cincinnati-Conneaut turnpike.

They're justly proud of their land, some of which ranks with the best in the country. And they're wondering whether the turnpike, if built, will ruin their farms.

If things work out as they did for the farmers along the Northern Ohio Turnpike now being built, they won't be badly off, says Derl Oberlin, an attorney in the right-of-way section of the Ohio Turnpike Commission.

That turnpike requires 1,650 mainline parcels of land, which represents a smaller number of farms—both big and small. In some cases the turnpike isolates a section of farmland. Like others it makes it harder for the farmer to travel to section of his farm divided by the turnpike.

Oberlin says the fact the commission had to go to court in only five per cent of land buying cases speaks well for its land purchase policies.

To insure fair values, local appraisers well acquainted with local land prices set amounts of money the commission was willing to pay. The commission, in order to speed up its land buying program offered a 10 per cent premium up to $2,000 for prompt closing of deals.

Most farmers thought the prices were fair, a few took the commission to court. When court verdicts came out close to appraisals, other farmers who had planned suits dropped them.

Oberlin says no one knows now whether the 10 per cent premium plan will be used in acquiring land for the Cincinnati-Conneaut turnpike.

The farmer not only gets paid for the land taken for right-of-way but also gets damages for land which ends up being on the other side of the turnpike. The amount of damages depends upon how inconvenient it is to the farmer to use the land across the turnpike. Most big farms are located on county roads that either will go over or under the turnpike. In those cases the farmers can reach the cut off part of his farm by using that road—and the amount of damages is smaller.

Some northern Ohio farms now are changing shape as farmers sell out off portions on the other side of the turnpike to farmers who can make use of them. In these cases the farmer comes out ahead, for he gets his sale price plus what the commission has paid him in damages, usually equal to the value of the land.

In some cases the farmer gets

Cleric Calls Off Tour Of Follies

ANDOVER, England (AP)—The Rev. Ivor Machin has canceled 15 seats he booked to give his parishioners a glimpse of Paris' famously naughty Folies Bergere.

The cleric said he bought the tickets for the edification of his flock during a tour he will conduct to the French capital next month. But the newspapers got word of it and he began getting nasty letters.

"I acted in all good faith, but some of the letters were very abusive," he said sadly today. Earlier he had said the Folies were part of Paris and therefore should be on the grand tour.

Methodist Church Leaders Broaden Defiance Charges

DEFIANCE (AP)—Plaintiffs in a suit involving the St. Paul Methodist Church here took another step yesterday to gain possession of the church property.

The board of trustees of the Ohio Annual Conference of the Methodist Church filed an injunction suit recently asking common pleas court to enjoin the church manager and the board of trustees from interfering with the newly assigned pastor, the Rev. Robert B. Weaver, in holding religious and other services in the church.

Joseph C. Richards, former pastor of the church and now business manager, was named a defendant in the suit along with the church's trustees and stewards.

Richards was made manager by the board of trustees, of which he was a member, after he resigned as pastor in a controversy with Ohio Methodist Bishop Hazen G. Werner and turned in his credentials as a minister. State Methodist officials are fighting for possession of the church property against Richards and church officials backing Richards.

In the latest court action, the plaintiffs asked a temporary injunction preventing the defendants from interfering with Rev. Mr. Weaver in conducting services and other church matters, and a mandatory injunction requiring the defendants to turn keys of the church and various church rooms over to Rev. Mr. Weaver.

A hearing on the latest court move is scheduled for 1:45 p. m. Friday before Judge Eugene Mc-Neill of Van Wert, assigned to hear the church case.

The motion filed today in the injunction suit stated that Rev. Mr. Weaver is scheduled to conduct a wedding in the church Saturday, and that the regular organist, Mrs. Marjorie Ware, has been instructed by Richards not to attempt to play at the nuptials.

The motion said further that Richards had told her that if she does attempt to play he will turn off the current to the electric organ.

The motion cited instances in which Rev. Mr. Weaver wanted to conduct services, at a funeral and at a wedding, and found the church locked. The action said Richards refused to turn over the keys to Rev. Mr. Weaver.

The defendants also claimed the church management has permitted the church to "go unattended" and had dismissed the church janitor, choir director and organist "in total disregard to the necessary

Savings Bond Figures Show July Increase

Ohio sales of Series E and H Savings Bonds for the month of July showed an increase of 22.9 percent over July of 1953. Judge William D. Radcliff, Chairman of the Pickaway County Savings Bonds Committee, reported. Sales in Pickaway County for July were $24,757.00, compared to $20,131.00 in July a year ago.

July sales in Ohio of E and H Savings Bonds totaled $26,879,393 as against $21,859,237 in July 1953.

Sales of the relatively new Series H Bond, a current income bond, were more than double as compared to sales in July 1953.

Nationally, sales for the first seven months were the highest for any January-July period since wartime 1945. Mr. Earl O. Shreve, National Director of the Treasury's Savings Bonds Division, also reported that in the first seven months of 1954 sales of E and H Bonds exceeded redemptions by $263,006,000.

The cash value of E and H Bonds outstanding was $37,579,000,000 at the end of July a new high record.

ROUNDUP

Pickaway County farmers can obtain experienced advice and up-to-date literature on their farming problems at the County Extension Office located in the Post Office Building, S. Court St., Circleville. The office here, headed by County Agent Larry Best, is the link between district farmers and the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University.

Fifty boys will test their tractor driving skill in the 4-H tractor rodeo next Saturday at the Ohio State University athletic field north of King Avenue. These boys are county winners, selected from nearly 1,600 boys who enrolled in the 4-H tractor maintenance project in 57 counties.

Contestants will back a 4-wheel trailer, pull a side-delivery rake through an obstacle course, and put a belt on the tractor and line it up to drive a blower or feed grinder. They are timed for each of these tests, but the main emphasis is on safe operation during the entire rodeo.

The project and rodeo trains 4-H Club members to operate farm tractors skillfully and safely. Through the rodeo club, leaders hope to make safe operation a habit so there will be fewer farm tractor accidents.

W. E. Gill, Ohio State University extension agricultural engineer, says safe and efficient operation must be a habit with boys who expect to win. Some boys have been eliminated at the contest for allowing extra riders on the tractor in view of judges, even though they were not in the timing circle. Gill is chairman of the committee that conducts the contest.

The purebred Ayrshire dairy herd of Russell E. Brown at Chillicothe has achieved top recognition during a recent month for outstanding production. The eight producers are credited with averaging 1,140 pounds of 4.6 percent milk and 53 pounds of butterfat, actual, which placed them among the nation's top Ayrshire herds in the Ayrshire Herd Test Division of 5 to 15 cows.

A $40 to $50 investment in lime and high potash fertilizer can yield a five-to-one return in the increased value of the alfalfa hay crop, declared the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee, in a statement citing recent studies by O. J. Attoe, University of Wisconsin soils specialist.

Attoe reports that Central Wisconsin land once thought too poor to grow alfalfa is now in hay for the seventh consecutive year, as a result of soil building practices.

Alfalfa yields totaled more than 13 tons per acre over a three-year period in tests at the Clark county farm, Attoe said, when the soil's fertility level was built up through adding needed lime and plant nutrients.

The program included five tons of lime and about 1,000 pounds per acre of 0-10-30 fertilizer. The fertilizer was worked in thoroughly and then the land was sown to oats, seeded to alfalfa.

"Figuring the alfalfa was worth about $20 a ton, that would return about $260 per acre for the 13-ton yield for the three-year period," Attoe said.

Attoe reports that in addition to boosting yields and improving the alfalfa crop's quality, the lime and fertilizer application helped the plants come through severe weather and to resist winter-kill.

An agronomy field day featuring corn and soybean culture will be held at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, Wooster, on Sept. 9.

Highlighting the all-day program will be talks and demonstrations on how to obtain good forage supplies for next year.

Agronomist John L. Parsons said that heavy wheat harvests and drought have caused many seedling failures in Ohio. He and other station field crops specialists plan to tell visiting farmers how to hold over their older seedlings and increase hay production in 1955 by using extra fertilizer.

G. H. Stringfield, USDA hybrid corn specialist, will show the results of field trials on new corn varieties and improved methods of planting.

Co-chairman G. W. Volk and C. A. Lamb of the Station's agronomy department announced that visitors will take conducted tours of the agronomy center where they will see what research has done in the culture of soybeans, small grains, and forage crops.

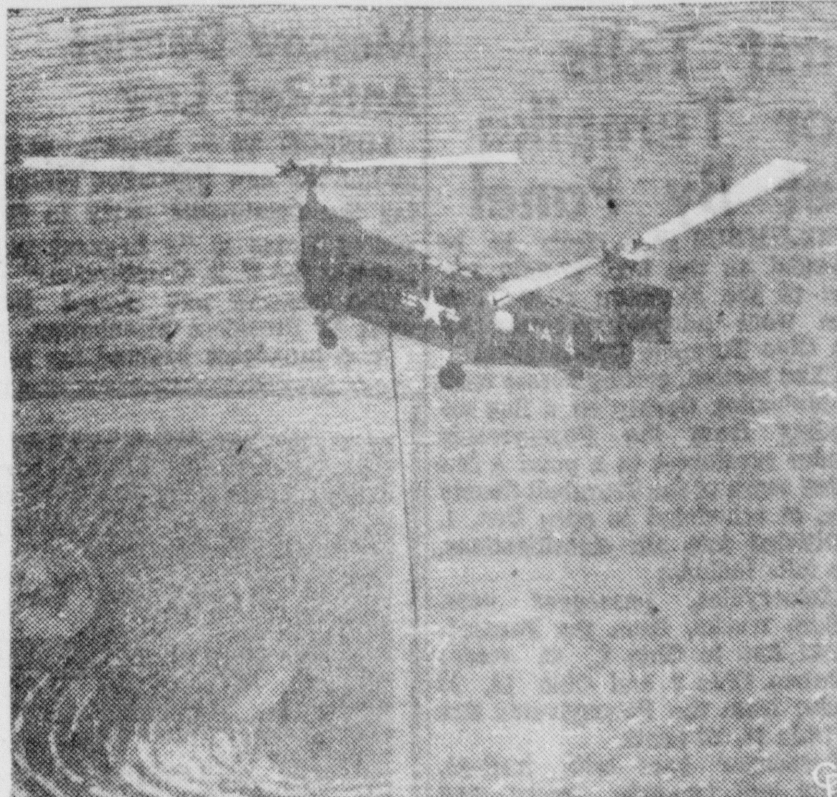

Mother, 2 Tots Killed In Home

GARDENTON, Mo. (AP)—A young mother and her two children were strangled yesterday at a farm on the edge of this southern Manitoba town. Her husband was arrested and charged with murder.

The dead were Mrs. Olga Storoschuk, 24, Jean, 4½, and Brian, 2½. Police said Walter Storoschuk, about 24, walked into a hardware store and told of the killing. No motive was determined.

Loan Given Firm

CANTON (AP)—Cronin China Co. of nearby Minerva has received a $50,000 loan from the Small Business Administration to avert an economic crisis, the firm announced today. Employees of the company have raised another $50,000 themselves and the total of $100,000 will be used to make new china patterns and build up a stock of patterns now on order.

UNDERWATER snooping technique is demonstrated by the Navy's new anti-submarine helicopter as it hovers motionless over the water near Fort Worth, Tex., with its latest dipping sonar detection equipment under the surface. Chicago's Jails Packed To Rafters

CHICAGO (AP)—Chicago's City Jail and Correctional Farm are jammed with prisoners. Warden Frank Sain said today.

The farm near suburban Hinsdale is so overcrowded, Sain said, that prisoners have been sleeping on floors "and wherever they could." The farm, with a capacity of 500 prisoners, now houses 874. Sain said the overcrowding at the farm is the result of an overflow of inmates at The Bridewell, the city's house of correction. It has a capacity of 1,800 prisoners and houses 2,426.

Even Effective Polio Vaccine Will Come Too Late For Many

Even if the latest laboratory steps develop a new and stronger weapon in the long battle against polio, the discoveries will come too late for approximately 100,000 people across the nation.

These are the people who are now suffering from polio, or who will contract the disease this year, according to Dr. Kenneth S. Landauer, assistant medical director of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. His warning came as the Emergency March of Dimes, made necessary by tremendous costs encountered in the fight against the crippling disease, moved through its final week.

Spokesmen for the March of Dimes in Pickaway County have asked for full public support in behalf of the emergency campaign. It has been emphasized that Pickaway County's response to the March of Dimes early this year represented one of the most successful drives ever completed here.

But many other sections of the state were unable to match the response in this district. And funds, meanwhile, have been exhausted by the great expenses of the anti-polio program and application of the Salk polio tests. Science has high hopes that these tests will show a tremendous gain against polio.

BUT EVEN if the Salk vaccine is proven effective, Dr. Landauer pointed out, it will come too late for a large percentage of victims. "It is largely to assure care for those who cannot be aided by any vaccine that an Emergency March of Dimes is now being conducted," Dr. Landauer said.

Nationwide, there are 67,000 patients being helped by the March of Dimes who contracted polio in 1953 or before, Dr. Landauer said. Estimates indicate that about 40,000 additional children and adults may be attacked by the disease in 1954.

"This year," he went on, "the National Foundation has the simultaneous burden of two tremendous programs: first, prevention, which includes evaluation of the vaccine field trials and purchase of gamma globulin; and second, patient aid. "Hope for effective prevention in the future cannot be allowed to mean a lessened effort in behalf of those who have been stricken and need help now."

Treatment of those severely stricken by polio is far more expensive than for those with lighter attacks, Dr. Landauer pointed out, yet may have extremely heart-warming results, as patients learn to leave their iron lungs and lead more nearly normal lives.

It may cost as much as $10,000 to care for one iron lung patient for one year. In 1953, Dr. Landauer said, of $29,734,000 spent by the National Foundation for patient care, $20,000,000 was for long-term illness.

No Curtailing Of McCarthy 'Trial' Pledged

Probe Leader Promises To Keep Door Open On Witnesses, Accusations

WASHINGTON (AP)—When the bipartisan Senate committee starts its "trial" of Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) next Tuesday, the door will be open insofar as number of witnesses and number of accusations against the Wisconsin solon is concerned.

The committee's public hearings will be based at the outset on five classes of charges. Indications are the six-member group plans to take testimony from relatively few witnesses.

However, Chairman Watkins (R-Utah) made clear that the committee was keeping a free hand to expand the number of charges it will inquire into and the witnesses it will call.

"We're not going to close the door," he said.

In announcing recently that the committee had decided to conduct hearings initially on five categories of charges, Watkins said they seemed to be "the most important" of 46 which were submitted by Senators Flanders (R-Vt), Fulbright (D-Ark) and Morse (Ind-Ore).

HE ALSO OBSERVED that the evidence relating to them is already a matter of public record.

Reached at La Jolla, Calif., where he is vacationing, McCarthy said he had no comment on the roster of charges.

Watkins said that if the committee can use existing records the hearings will not take as long as if it had to call witnesses to gather its evidence.

Among questions still unanswered, however, are how many witnesses McCarthy will ask to have called, what subjects he will open up in presenting his defense and how rigorous he and his counsel will be in cross-examination.

The resolution of censure was introduced by Flanders, who asked the Senate to condemn McCarthy's conduct on the ground that it was unbecoming a senator and brought the Senate into disrepute.

Flanders subsequently filed 33 separate specifications. Seven others were submitted by Fulbright and six by Morse.

The special bipartisan investigating committee said yesterday that out of these 46 charges, it has grouped 13 under five different headings:

1. That McCarthy showed contempt for the Senate by his failure to appear to answer accusations before a Senate Rules subcommittee that investigated his financial affairs in 1951-52.

2. INCIDENTS of encouragement of United States employees to violate the law and their oaths of office or executive orders.

3. Incidents involving receipt or use of confidential or classified documents or other confidential information from executive files.

4. Incidents involving abuses of colleagues in the Senate.

5. That McCarthy abused Brig. Gen. Ralph Zwicker, then commanding general at Camp Kilmer, N. J., during an investigation of the promotion and discharge of Maj. Irving Peress, characterized by McCarthy as a "Fifth Amendment Communist."

Crashed Auto's Driver Only 9

HARTFORD CITY, Ind. (AP)—An automobile knocked down a road sign and crashed into a tree yesterday and police said they found a 9-year-old girl at the wheel and two intoxicated women in the car.

The women were Mrs. Pearl May Coulter, a divorcee and owner of the car, and Mrs. Clara Bisel, mother of Judy Lane Bisel, the child driver.

Mrs. Coulter and Mrs. Bisel were charged with public intoxication. Mrs. Coulter also was charged with permitting an unlicensed driver to operate her car.

First Tolls For Turnpike Set By Panel

COLUMBUS (AP)—Tolls to be charged on the first 22-mile section of the Northern Ohio Turnpike were adopted recently by the Ohio Turnpike Commission.

The section, cutting across most of Mahoning County on a line extending from the Pennsylvania border northwest to a point a few miles south of the Trumbull County line, is scheduled to open Dec. 1.

Divided into six classifications, the tolls include:

Motorcycles, passenger cars, pickup trucks, from the Pennsylvania line to Ohio 7, 25 cents; between Ohio 7 and Ohio 18, 25 cents; from the Pennsylvania line to Ohio 18, 30 cents.

Passenger cars with trailers, single unit two-axle trucks and buses carrying less than 13 passengers, 25, 30 and 45 cents.

Single-unit three-axle trucks and buses with 13 or more passengers, 30, 55 and 85 cents.

Combination trucks with three axles, 40, 70 and $1.10.

Four-axle trucks, 55, 90 and $1.45.

Trucks with more than four axles, 70, $1.20 and $1.90.

The commission said the classifications will be changed when the entire turnpike is opened Oct. 1, 1955. Then equipment for reclassifying vehicles by weight automatically will be in use.

Moscow Decries Anti-Red Law

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio claims the new legislation outlawing the Communist party in the United States is "a flagrant violation of the U. S. Constitution."

The measure was signed this week by President Eisenhower.

In a broadcast beamed for-

Farm Surplus Pile Being Whittled Away

Drought, Export Hike Helping Cut Down Excess Food Stuffs

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Drought and increased exports of farm products are teaming up to whittle a little away from the piles of surpluses. They are also having their effect on prices.

Bad growing weather is cutting production—and raising the prices of some fruits and vegetables at the grocery.

Farm exports have increased four per cent in the last 12 months, the agriculture department reports—but much of the gain was due to price-cutting as the government tried to squirm out from under the big burden of foodstuffs it has acquired in supporting prices.

Two other government reports illustrate how confusing the food price picture can be.

In July the retail price of food went 70 — largely because of drought damage. In July, however, the prices that farmers got for their crops averaged three per cent below a year ago. In the same month the farmer had to pay about 10 per cent more for the things he bought in town.

The farmer was worse off than last year. And the housewife may have felt that she was the loser, too.

All food prices haven't been going up, of course. The rise in fresh vegetable prices hurts the store because per capita consumption of vegetables has been going up steadily in recent years. Fresh vegetable consumption stays fairly level, but both frozen and canned varieties have found larger markets.

Meat eaters are getting a break these days. By shopping around the housewife can usually beat last year's prices. Poultry and egg prices are so much lower today that some chicken farmers are appealing to Washington for government buying to bolster prices. And the agriculture department reports that farmers are raising more turkeys than ever this year, expecting to top the previous record year of 1952.

Coffee and cocoa prices have been coming down a little, due to a price break in the market in Brazil—where the government has been setting the price.

Coffee roasters here aren't sure the price break will last or that retail prices here can be brought down much. They note that there's a wide gap between the price of the green bean in Brazil and the roasted product on the grocery shelf.

A spokesman for the First National Stores in Somerville, Mass., says it takes 100 pounds of green coffee to produce 84 pounds of roasted coffee. Add in freight costs of 2½ cents a pound, 2 cents for a paper bag, 6 cents for a vacuum can, and the costs of distributing the packaged product through wholesale or retail channels—and "the fixed costs" of coffee will keep its price high, even if Brazil doesn't juggle the price up again once it's sold its present unmovable surplus.

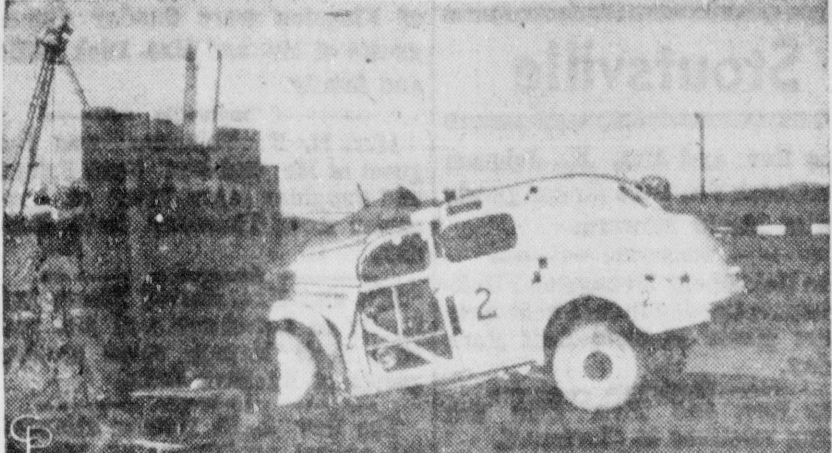

The same type of "fixed costs" enters into the picture for most foods on their way from the farm to the grocery. And the housewife's increasing demands for time and labor saving processing seems to add a little more to the costs each year.

That's one reason the Washington boys see fairly stable food prices ahead for some time to come. They doubt if the drop in price supports now expected on next year's major crops will work out to anything much at the grocery.

Another reason for stable prices is that consumer incomes stay high and consumers are putting about a fourth of it into food. They're buying the better quality and more expensively processed foods.

Only now and then—as recently in the case of coffee—do they show any real price resistance.

Ever wonder what the difference is between compressed and active dry yeast? Compressed yeast is a moist mixture of yeast and starch, and the yeast is in an active state; because the yeast is moist, it is perishable. Active dry yeast is similar to compressed yeast except that the mixture has been dried and comes packaged in granular form.

The United Nations becomes a special case because of its huge employment of personnel and its presence in the large and complicated city of New York. For instance, the "UN" license plate on an automobile standing where it has no right to be is always an irritant to Americans who may not park in such places.

It is a small matter, but annoying. In the early days of the U. N., some of its great men took advantage of their privilege to violate traffic laws, but this habit was so ably publicized that apparently somebody talked about it and the

U.S. Defense Spending Still Major Item

War Scares Pressing Less Now, But Nation's Bill Runs Up Steadily

NEW YORK (AP)—War scares are less pressing today, but defense spending continues to play a sizeable role as a built-in and fairly permanent bolster to American business.

Sometimes the spending is to maintain a defense plant for quick use if war comes—as the plan just announced to give businessmen contracts to keep plants in readiness.

Sometimes the spending is aimed more at a tholing—as the shanty recently announced to buy up more domestic lead and zinc for the strategic stockpile to take up the slack in civilian demand for these metals.

Sometimes the spending coincides partly—as the calling for bids to supply cloth for new green uniforms for the U. S. Army. The depressed textile industry welcomes the Army's decision to change the color of its uniform.

And the shipbuilding industry—running short of commercial orders for new vessels—welcomes Washington's decision to spend a little money just now in the shipyards.

Defense spending often is an arm of the diplomats, also. Our contracts to buy Bolivian tin and Chilean copper for the strategic stockpile are aimed as much at bolstering our foreign policy as at building up stores of metal for possible war needs.

Government economy has cut back sharply in much defense spending in the last year and had much to do with pulling over-all industrial production figures down. This decline—with its accompanying of cancelled orders, plant layoffs, and idle machines—took most of the spotlight.

But the backdrop of the picture is the solid amount of government money which continues to flow into industry.

The nation's defense build-up is expected to reach its goal in three more years. From then on—according to the present blueprints—the defense program will be one of maintenance.

In a world where weapons and defenses change so rapidly, however, replacing obsolete military hardware will be a major piece of business for years to come.

And the Office of Defense Mobilization is taking steps to see that industry is ready not only to maintain and replace military goods but to spring quickly into full-scale production should war break out.

Government-owned machine tools and production equipment are being kept packaged at or near the plants that would need them for war production. Each package contains all the tools that would be needed to produce a given military item.

And now privately owned plants and machinery that would be necessary to produce war goods fast are to be kept in readiness—with government cash. Maintenance contracts will be given various companies.

They will maintain not only the machines and plant space that would be needed but also in some instances will retain a "human package"—a group of key managers, engineers and other skilled workers who know how to make the military hardware the nation might need quickly, if attacked.

The strategic stockpile of metals and other materials we would need in wartime continues to grow. Its size and state is pretty much secret. But it is known that some parts of the stockpile are complete or nearly so.

Some metals and minerals, however, are still below the stockpile quota—tungsten, manganese,

'We Want to Help Others'

By Central Press

NEW YORK—Seated in wheel chairs, braced in steel from feet to waist, their ever-present crutches close at hand, Mrs. Marion Kaufmann and Mrs. Ella Mae Tomevi heard about the Emergency March of Dimes and immediately volunteered their services.

"What can we do to help?" was their query.

Their determination to help other polio sufferers comes even as they themselves are undergoing treatment at the Institute of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation of New York University-Bellevue Medical Center. This determination is heightened because they know their hometown chapters of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis are responsible for the present opportunity of "learning how to live to the hilt, within the limits of their disabilities."

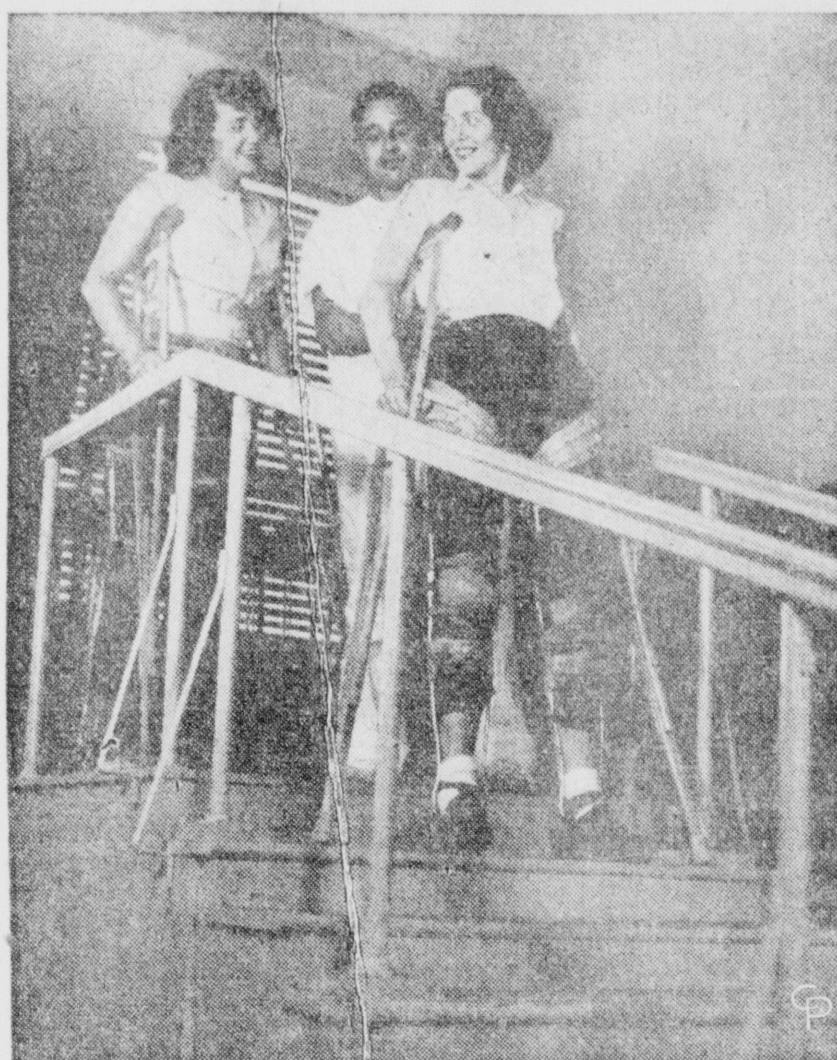

Teaming up as patient-pals after their meeting at the institute earlier this year, the two now are more than halfway through their programs of rehabilitation. This training includes therapy of all kinds—physical, occupational, recreational, vocational. It means instruction in walking with crutches and braces; learning how to get in and out of wheel chairs, house chairs, davenport, beds, automobiles; training for the activities of daily living still possible despite handicaps.

FOR THE POLIO PATIENT, rehabilitation, or "rehab," may begin with being "weaned" from an iron lung, relearning to breathe despite chest paralysis. It may carry through for months and years in all aspects of the patient's care and treatment.

Both are 28, married and counting primarily on becoming good housewives again, relearning household chores in light of their handicaps. Both are blue-eyed, animated and cheerful. Ella Mae is a honey-blonde; Marion is a redhead—and a honey, too.

They both have had training and continue an interest in music. Marion was a nightclub singer and radio actress. Ella Mae sang in concert and church choirs. Both contracted polio away from home. Ella Mae while visiting her Marine corps husband in Florida. Marion while traveling through Tennessee with her husband on the way back to New York from Mexico.

wich Village, New York, with their 2-year-old daughter Toni. Seven-month-old Peter is staying with Mrs. Kaufmann's mother in Flemington, N. J.

Ella Mae's polio attack left her handicapped severely from the waist down, with some involvement in her left arm. She has made great progress toward physical independence. She prides herself on refund ability to negotiate stairs in either direction. The two are keen on re-establishing their vocational independence, too. Marion, after work as a singer, actress and assistant restaurant manager, later took nursing training and was graduated in 1949 from the Bellevue Schools of Nursing. Later still she became a nurses' instructor at Bellevue hospital. Today she hopes to follow through on her professional standing as a registered nurse by opening up a nurses' registry after her institute rehabilitation.

Ella Mae thinks she'll be happy just to return to her home and husband in Paterson. But besides her domestic duties, she wants to rejoin the choir of the Hawthorne Methodist church. Moreover, she's proud of her business record as a former secretary to a Baptist minister, as a city clerk, and with the Federal Telephone and Radio corporation in Nutley, N. J. She's not going to cast all that experience aside, but has utilized part of her vocational training at the institute to familiarize herself with the latest in typing and secretarial equipment.

"That's for future insurance," says she. "Mostly I'm going to try to be as good a housewife as I can with the capacities I have left."

Charges Against Otis Dismissed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Securities Exchange Commission has thrown out charges against Otis & Co. after a long inquiry into its withdrawal as an underwriter for a $10 million Kaiser-Frazer Corp. stock issue in 1948.

In a unanimous action, the commission granted a motion by Otis & Co. for dismissal of proceedings to determine whether the Cleveland firm's registration as a broker should be revoked.

The commission never ruled on the main issue of the controversy, whether Otis & Co. deliberately prompted James F. Masterson, a Philadelphia attorney and K-F stockholder, to file a suit charging mismanagement on the part of officers of the auto company.

New Westinghouse Factory Readied

COLUMBUS (AP)—The $45 million Westinghouse Electric Appliance Division plant here will be dedicated formally Sept. 16, John H. Ashbaugh, company vice president, has announced.

Construction of the plant was started in September 1952. While it is not the largest plant owned by Westinghouse, it is the largest the corporation has ever built.

Eventually, the new plant, which went into production Nov. 12, 1953, will employ between 6,000 and 7,000 persons, company officials said, and will be used entirely for production of major appliances.

The company announcement said eventually the new plant will produce all Westinghouse refrigerators and freezers.

Quadruplets Born To Flier's Wife

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—Mrs. Mildred I. Zook, 26-year-old wife of an airman, gave birth Tuesday to quadruplets. Two, however, were still-born.

The surviving babies, a boy weighing 3 pounds 14 ounces and a girl weighing 3 pounds 10 ounces, were placed in an incubator and reported in a "healthy" condition. The mother also was reported in good condition. They were in the McConnell base hospital.

Keith L. Zook, 25, the father, was flown here from Korea and arrived before the births.

Weekly Food Review

By The Associated Press

Chickens are on the bargain counter in the nation's food stores this weekend. Fowls, broilers and fryers will be featured by many stores with reductions ranging up to eight cents a pound from week-ago prices.

Chickens have been cheap for some time, and now prices have sagged even further. What's more, production is continuing at such a pace that inexpensive chickens seem likely to be available for several months to come.

Another economical weekend special will be veal roast.

Chuck roast again heads the list of specials in the beef line. Round steak will be on sale in a good number of stores, too.

Sirloin steak will cost about the same as a week ago, while prime ribs will be the same or a few cents higher. Leg of lamb and pork chops will go up a couple of cents in some stores.

Taking a look at foods for the fall, the U. S. Department of Agriculture observes that there'll be excellent supplies of many of the good things needed for man-sized dishes. It points out that beef is abundant and that vegetable bins are crowded with good buys. Poultry and medium and small eggs will be plentiful, it says, and shoppers will find good value in fish, both fresh and frozen.

Produce men report that abundant supplies of nearby vegetables continue to roll to market. They list as outstanding buys eggplant, peppers, cabbage, potatoes, onions, corn, squash and watermelon. Good buys include cucumbers, lettuce, celery, cauliflower, tomatoes and sweet potatoes.

Spinach remains on the expensive side. Beans and carrots are up a bit at wholesale. Cantaloupes and honeydew melons are considered moderately priced.

Peaches, grapes and limes are tagged the best buys in fruits.

Top Stock Car Driver In Nation Can Earn Almost $50,000 Yearly

By HAL BOYLE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — In an age when airplanes go twice the speed of sound, millions of Americans are still more thrilled by seeing how fast horses and automobiles can race around a track. Why?

"People are interested in all kinds of speed today," said Bill France, a kingpin of the thriving stock car racing industry. "But to get really excited over it they have to be close enough to see and feel it."

France, who stands 6-foot-4 and weighs 230 pounds, built his own racing car as a rawboned kid of 20 back in 1929. He drove in 75 races in the days when the rewards came in the form of thrills and peanut prizes.

But the sport, first popular in the South, started mushrooming across the country in 1938, and its starvation times seem over. It's big business now.

Big Bill is president of the largest organized segment of the industry, the Nation Assn. for Stock Car Auto Racing.

"This year there will be some 2,000 events on 100 tracks in all parts of America," he said. "Close to eight million people will pay up to $10 million to see them."

"The big wheels in the auto business are getting interested now. Some people are even building stock car racing stables, just as they do stables of racehorses. Paul Whiteman, for example, has a two-car stable."

Some 4,000 drivers now compete regularly in stock car races on a national point rating system. Leading drivers fly by plane from one track to another.

"At least four drivers should earn $25,000 in prize money this year," France said. "And probably 20 more will do better than $15,000."

"The national winner, in addition to his prize and bonus money, can also count on about $20,000 more for personal appearances."

This possibility of earning up to $50,000 in a year has attracted many drivers.

The Kentucky Derby of the stock car speed field is the Labor Day race in Darlington, S. C., which pays $30,000 in prizes this year and is expected to attract 150,000.

But plans are underway to build a $2 million track at Daytona Beach, Fla., a project which France and his fellow promoters hope will enable them to put on contests that will make the AAA's annual Indianapolis

Speedway classic look like a turtle race.

"The Indianapolis track was built 40 years ago," he said. "On almost any modern track now they can use the same equipment and go up to 40 miles an hour faster."

In one race in which he participated, France's car turned over and over several times, and he had a number of ribs pulled loose. It was his only injury in 75 times at the wheel. But big Bill doesn't like to dwell on the perils of the trade.

Just as horse racing is traditionally defended as a way to "improve the breed," so motor car stock racing has its moral platform, too.

"We feel," said France, "that we have given an incentive to mechanically minded kids who want a chance to make a little money and win national recognition—and, of course, this also keeps them off the highway."

Woman Outfoxed

CINCINNATI (AP) — Two women pulled the old confidence game on Mrs. Margaret Burns, 67, a widow, and fled her out of $4,000 yesterday. They told her they found $33,000 and would share the money with her if she put up the $4,000 as a "good faith" token. She turned over the money, but they never returned.

Old Tags Found

COLUMBUS (AP) — License plates, believed to be the first made in Ohio, were found here yesterday by workmen digging up earth for a new interchange in the city. The plates were finished with blue porcelain but bore no year date. They are believed to have been made in 1908. A plate labeled No. 1 was among those found.

Retired General Says U.S. 'Required' To Lose In War

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A retired Air Force general has told a Senate subcommittee here that "we were required to lose" the Korean War.

He was Lt. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, now living in nearby Winter Park after a heart attack in 1951.

The Senate Internal Security subcommittee came here because of his physical condition and heard him in closed sessions yesterday. Today's session was open.

Stratemeyer told the committee that "State Department and political interference kept us from winning the war."

Gen. Mark Clark recently told the committee he, too, felt that military decisions had been over-ruled by other considerations.

Stratemeyer said that as head of the Far East Air Force under Gen. Douglas MacArthur "I wasn't permitted to do a job and certainly MacArthur was handcuffed. Never before in American history was a military commander placed in the position of not being allowed to win."

He said that in his opinion it was not the fault of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in Washington.

When they visited Tokyo, he said, "they tried to explain the handicaps placed upon them and promised to do everything they could to give us what we had to have to win."

"We never had enough ground troops but we could have won with what we had on the ground and in the air if we had been allowed to use it wisely from a military standpoint."

Stratemeyer said his planes were forced to bomb bridges across the Yalu River crossways instead of lengthwise "so we would not violate the Manchurian and Siberian borders."

Under questioning by Jay Sourwine, counsel for the Senate Judiciary committee and subcommittee counsel Alva Carpenter as well as Sen. Pat McCarran (D-Nev.), Stratemeyer said "this method of bombing made it impossible to knock out the bridges although one bridge was dropped into the river."

"But then pontoon bridges built by the Chinese to replace the flattened span had to be bombed the same way and only at the south end so that the enemy was able to replace them overnight," he said.

Burglary Suspect 'Tried' On TV, Attorney Claims

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — An attorney for a burglary suspect charges that his client "was arrested, tried and convicted on a television program" before he was formally arraigned before a magistrate on specific charges.

The attorney, Garfield W. Levy, protested to Magistrate E. David Keiser yesterday in Central Police Court that this "was an invasion of the defendant's right of privacy."

The program to which Levy referred was telecast by a local station Tuesday night and depicted the activities of the so-called night squad.

The program showed Al White, 21, and Samuel Hatchell, 22, as they were questioned after their arrest in the theft of a $3,718 payroll.

At a hearing today, both men were held without bail on burglary and larceny charges.

Keiser told Levy, who represents White, that he should properly bring up the matter about the TV showing at the time of the defendant's trial or before the grand jury.

It was signed: "Sincerely, Dwight D. Eisenhower." President and Mrs. Eisenhower are vacationing here.

Indiana Jail Escapee Caught

DECATUR, Ind. (AP) — Maynard Brewster, 47, of Fort Wayne, who escaped from the Adams County jail Monday after tying up his uncooperative cellmate, was captured in nearby Berne.

Police officer Alfred Zumbrum saw Brewster walking along a street and arrested him without resistance. Brewster was returned to the same jail, where he was awaiting trial on a charge of running a filling station while on parole from a life term he received as an habitual criminal.

You get a 3-way bonus in the car that's soaring to new success

WHAT has happened in the automobile business this year is something that you should take to heart—as a personal benefit to yourself, and as a sure way to pick a winner.

It is simply this: Buick has moved into the charmed circle of America's three top sales leaders—a circle once dominated only by the so-called "low-price three."

In plainer words—Buick today is outselling all other cars in America except two of these so-called "low-price three." And this has come about because of Buick's advanced year-ahead styling, great V8 power, big-car room and comfort—all for prices starting right close to the lowest. So you reap a worth-while 3-way benefit.

1. You get the look of tomorrow—today

In Buick today you get the modern styling other cars will reach in the future. For here you get true year-ahead beauty—long, low glamor lines, sports-car grace, and that spectacular new panoramic windshield that most other cars won't have till 1955.

2. You get the bigger allowance of our volume business

The tremendous sales volume that has brought Buick into the leadership circle of the "Big Three" means that we can offer you a higher trade-in allowance on your present car when you buy a new Buick. That's the simple reason why we can make you a better deal right now.

3. You get more resale dollars when you trade

With Buick so advanced in style this year it's a sure thing Buick will stay in style for years to come, as other cars catch up. So the new Buick you buy today brings you a higher resale price at trade-in time later. Drop in—see and drive this tomorrow-styled Buick—and get in on Buick's big 3-way bonus right now.

Now's the time to make your buy because—

Wrong Way Race Causes Long Rhubarb

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — Five judges pondered, debated, and then came up early today with a solution for the European Games "wrong way" marathon that even Solomon might have envied.

So the track and field games entered their second day with an unprecedented squabble and a decision that will take its place in athletic annals.

Last night Ivan Filin, a Russian coal miner, came into the Neufeld Stadium with a comfortable lead in the marathon. But he turned left when he should have gone right.

The Russians protested bitterly that he had been misdirected and that the officials' error had cost the 28-year-old runner victory in his first international marathon.

During utter confusion and in semidarkness, Veikko Karvonen of Finland rushed into the stadium, circled one lap of the 400-meter track and finished first. Another Russian, Boris Grishchak, also slipped home for second place. Meanwhile, Filin had been told of the error of his ways, and returned and made the right turn and finished third.

For more than four hours, the jury of these fifth European Track and Field Championships — two Frenchmen, a Swede, a Briton and a Russian — argued the matter.

The judges finally conceded Filin would have triumphed had he not made the wrong turn. Then they unanimously decided that the order of finish would remain the same but that Filin would receive a gold medal identical with that of the winner. The inscription of Filin's medal would not mention his third place, only his time.

Pennsy Filly Sets Sights On Records

COLUMBUS (AP) — A trim little filly from Camp Hill, Pa., in just a season and a half at the races, has placed her name nine times on the world record table kept for the harness racing sport by the United States Trotting Assn.

The USTA said today only two other horses, Greyhound, and the great trotting stallion Star's Pride, hold more records than Max Hempf's 3-year-old trotter Stenographer.

all harness horses from 1934 to 1940, still holds 14 records. Star's Pride, who campaigned from 1934 to 1940, has 10, a mark which Stenographer is shooting for now.

Most recent record shattered by Stenographer was the race standard for age, gait and sex which has stood since 1930 when Hanover's Bertha trotted a mile in two minutes flat. Stenographer broke it when she came home for trainer-driver Del Miller in 1:59.4 at the Illinois State Fair last week.

Stenographer, the beaten favorite in this year's Hambletonian, holds every possible mile record for two and three-year-old trotting fillies except one and she may pipe that off the books before the season ends.

The only one she doesn't hold is the three-year-old mile track standard of 1:59.4 established by The Marchioness in a time trial in 1932.

Stenographer is the world's champion two-year-old trotting filly over both a mile track (2:01) and half-mile track (2:06.3) and the champion three-year-old filly over a half-mile track (2:03.4) and in a race over a mile track (1:59.4). In addition, she holds several two-heat records which boost her lifetime total to nine.

Shoemaker Again Wins Ohio Open

DAYTON (AP)—Another victory in the Ohio Open next year for Dick Shoemaker, 44-year-old Cleveland club pro, will add his name to those of two internationally known golfers as the only men in history who have won the title three times in a row.

Shoemaker made it two straight yesterday when he captured the 1954 classic over the 6,500-yard, par 35-36-71 Walnut Grove Country Club course, with a 72-hole total of 284, even par.

Only players to win three in a row were Denny Shute, in 1929-30, 31, and Byron Nelson, who did it in 1940-41-42.

Judging only from performances this year and last, there is no one in sight who can dethrone Shoemaker.

The Beechmont Club pro, father of four children, defeated Herman Keiser, 39-year-old Barberton pro, each time. Last year, the Cleveland finished five shots to the good and this year it was three, as Keiser wound up the 1954 tourney with a 287 total.

For a while, it looked as though Jack Zimmerman, 26-year-old Dayton amateur, was going to become the third simon pure in history to win, but the fates were unkind to the bespectacled mechanical engineer. Leader each of the first two days, Zimmerman had putter trouble Wednesday and closed with 74-75-149 for a 288 total and third place.

$15,000 Due Winners Of Ohio Events

COLUMBUS—Four events worth $15,000 and limited to Ohio-owned horses are among the 24 scheduled to be contested during the annual Ohio State Fair harness racing program which opens Saturday and continues through Sept. 3.

While entries are accepted from throughout the United States for all the other races, horses must be Ohio-owned to compete in the $5,000 Governor's Cup for 3-year-old trotters, the $4,000 Director of Agriculture Pace for 3-year-old pacers and a pair of $3,000 events for 2-year-olds of each gait.

In all, 435 nominations have been received from owners seeking to share in the near $50,000 purse melon with 137 of that total listed for the Ohio-owned events.

Principal interest, of course, will center on the Governor's Cup slated to be raced Thursday, Sept. 3. Gov. Frank J. Lausche will present the trophy in that one.

Director of Agriculture A. L. Sorenson will do the trophy honors in the Sept. 2 race named in his honor while two other well-known Ohio harness racing names will award the trophies in the two-year-old events.

The Haughton Sulky Company Trophy will go to the winner of the 2-year-old trot on Sept. 1 and the Hilliards Raceway Trophy to the winner of the 2-year-old pace the following day.

Post time is 2 p. m. daily.

Rehearsal Set At Shoot For Roaring Grand

VANDALIA (AP)—Today is dress rehearsal for the clay-target sport's greatest show at the Grand American Trapshoot.

Today's event is the preliminary handicap, a 100-target affair in which the shooters are placed according to their ability from 17 to 25 yards back of the traps from which the targets emerge.

The contest, expected to attract more than 1,700 shooters, is patterned exactly after Friday's Grand American Handicap, the No. 1 event in trapshooting. The preliminary carries a guaranteed prize of $1,000 to the winner, but he may pick up an extra six or eight thousand in arioussures.

Although the preliminary and the "Roaring Grand" are exactly the same, the difference in prestige is about the same as that between the 5th race at Louisville and the Kentucky Derby.

Yesterday's big star was Arnold

Riegger, 34-year-old, 5-foot-5, 200-pound bachelor from Seattle, Wash. The poly-poly Riegger broke 400 targets at 16 yards yesterday, wrapping up the "champion of champions" title over 36 other state champions and adding the double A class laurel to his long string of victories.

Other winners were: Marvin Driver of Missouri Valley, Iowa, defeated E. A. Ross of Uniontown, Pa., 25 to 24 in a shoot-off for the Class A championship, after they had tied with 200.

Dr. Carl R. Green of Creighton,

Nebr., broke 200 in a row to win the Class B laurels.

The Class C title went to Arthur E. Sheffield, the 1932 Grand American Handicap champion from Dixon, Ill., with 197.

Fred Needham of New Haven,

Conn., won in Class D with 197.

Iva Pembroke, the Phillipsburg, Kan., school teacher, was the high feminine shooter in the 200-target, 16-yard race and Bill Nelson, of Brady, Neb., took the junior championship, each with 199.
